FIRST 20 MINUTES

Save the three routes that govern your academic record.

- 01 AEC notices for college instructions and department context.
- 02 MAKAUT Exam for routines, form-fill-up and university notices.
- 03 Current syllabus index for your actual course document.

AEC//CSE · FIELD MANUAL / 2026

AECHEATSHEET is a static, B.Tech CSE-first handbook. It is deliberately built around public source routes, not access to private academic systems.

HOW TO USE THIS

For deadlines, fees, attendance, exams or formal requests: open the latest official notice again, even if this guide names the route.

AEC//CSE • FIELD RECORD

01

START WITH THE SOURCE

What this handbook does differently

It separates official institutional routes, public department pages, login-gated systems, search-verified candidates, and club-maintained resources.

01 / Binding academic action

Latest MAKAUT notice → current AEC circular

02 / Programme information

Current MAKAUT syllabus → AEC department page

03 / Fee or accommodation

Current AEC demand/form → college office

04 / Community opportunity

Club-maintained update → verify the event owner and deadline

ACADEMIC SYSTEM

Curriculum, dates & exam checkpoints

STUDY SEQUENCE

Build a CSE base in layers

Start with C fundamentals, then algorithmic thinking and DSA. Add Python for scripting and data work, Git for version history, and operating-system basics as you begin using the terminal. Keep course outcomes—not random playlists—as your filter.

R3

LEGITIMATE PUBLIC TOOLS

Practice with an exit signal

Use a lightweight editor, one compiler/runtime, a Git repository and a problem log. At first, measure output rather than hours: one executable program, one readable commit, or one explained algorithm per practice session.

Visual Studio Code	↗
GitHub Skills	↗
Programiz C compiler	↗
GeeksforGeeks DSA	↗
Desmos calculator	↗

A workable first programming loop

The Semester II CSE course formally includes programming for problem solving and introductory AI. Use the earlier weeks to make syntax, tracing and small programs routine—not decorative.

WINDOW	FOCUS	EVIDENCE YOU SHOULD CREATE
Weeks 1–2	C syntax + input/output	Variables, decisions, loops; type each example before reading solution.
Weeks 3–4	Functions + arrays	Split one program into functions; trace arrays on paper before
Weeks 5–6	Pointers + files	Treat memory diagrams as compulsory; build one read/write program.
Weeks 7–8	Search/sort + complexity	Compare linear/binary search and write basic sort logic with paste.
Alongside	Python + Git	Use Python for quick practice; commit small working change clear message.

PRACTICE RULE

Copying a program is not practice. Re-type it, change one input or branch, explain the output, and commit the working version.

03.3

LIGHTWEIGHT TOOLKIT

Keep it simple enough to maintain

Editor: VS Code or another lightweight code editor. Version control: Git and one GitHub repository per practice track. Calculator: a scientific calculator or Desmos for checking—not replacing—steps. Study record: one file or notebook for errors you now know how to fix.

Curriculum

Read the current document before treating a code or date as binding.

STUDENT-LIFE ROUTES

Community, alumni and what remains unverified

AEC's annual-events route, department pages and club links provide the safer starting point for activities. The official alumni page states the association is registered, but its activities section had a public database-access error when reviewed. No extractable public transport schedule or sports page details were found in targeted checks.

Useful first-year pattern

Attend induction, identify a club or chapter that matches your genuine interest, and keep one hour weekly for a practical build or learning log.

When a route is unclear

Ask a department office, library desk, admissions/college office or named institutional contact. Do not invent a form, deadline, warden contact or transport fee.
